ON THEIR WAY TO CHURCH

With the opening of the horse show today and the coming October days, society is fast returning from the various summer resorts, and yesterday quite a number of fashionable persons wended their way up and down Walnut street toward the various churches.

Miss Phoebe Williams Adams, who has lately returned from a trip in the mountains, was seen yesterday with her fiancé, George J. Harding. Miss Adams was wearing a tailored suit of navy blue serge, which was made with a narrow skirt and double circular ruffle overskirt. The coat was cut slightly shorter than hip length and was hung in a square effect. The sleeves were in a three-quarter length and were finished with cuffs covered with a collar and reverse of white pique. Miss Adams' hat was a high-crowned sailor model with a narrow turned trim, and was trimmed with a one-inch band of black grosgrain ribbon.

Dark navy blue was also selected by Miss Charlotte Hare, whose suit was the plainer style of tailor-made and very smart and manly in cut. The skirt was plain and narrow and the coat was fastened with large black buttons. Miss Hare's hat was a semi-large straight-brimmed model of a dove shade of brown; the crown was entirely surrounded by a handsome ostrich feather of the same shade, one end of which stood high up at the side of the front.

Mrs. George J. Harding has chosen a stunning suit which is a combination of black and white. It is made with a three-tiered skirt of black-and-white shepherd's plaid. The short coat, which is finished at the back with a rounded flare, is composed entirely of black and is fastened at the front with a large black button. A small toque of black lacquered straw, which is trimmed about the top of the crown with thin mercury-wing feathers, completes this good-looking costume, which is worn with a blouse of white crepe de chine.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Y. Burrows will return home this week. They have been spending the summer at Sunapee Lake, N. H. Mr. Burrows will entertain Miss Katharine Brown at dinner next Saturday night.

BRETTON WOODS

BRETTON WOODS, N. H., Sept. 20.—Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Frick, of Bryn Mawr, will spend a few days here. Henry Clay Frick has so far recovered from his recent illness as to take a daily motor ride. He drove to Waughel and Mountain View today.

Miss Mary Davis and Miss Natalie Davis, of Philadelphia; Miss Wickersham, of New York; Miss Hope Johnson, of Spryden, N. Y.; and Miss Dorothy Londoner, of Colorado, were among those seen at the ball at the Mt. Washington, Saturday evening.

Visitors are interested in the announcement of the engagement of Major William Lathery, formerly on the Governor's staff, and now practicing law in Manila, P. I., to Miss Sarah P. Fooks, of Delaware, now living in Japan. Major Lathery was graduated from West Point and is a brother of Adjutant General Herbert E. Lathery, N. H. N. G.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 20.—Mrs. A. Sydney Carpenter and Mrs. Robert Ferguson, of Philadelphia, made the steep ascent to the summit of Mount Washington this afternoon.

Captain and Mrs. John H. Gibbons, of Washington, who spent the afternoon playing tennis with J. O. Schert, of Washington, and Miss Harriet Ely, of Bryn Mawr, were at one of the tables on the terrace on Saturday.

Dr. George B. deSchweinitz, of Philadelphia, motored over here today from a nearby resort with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Randall, for whom he gave a luncheon.

THE DRAMA

THEATRICAL BAEDEKER

ADELPHI—"The Revolt," by Edward Locke, starring Helen Ware. A wife driven desperate by the neglect of her husband, decides to seek equal liberty, but retreats in time. Review tomorrow.

BROAD—"Drugged," melodrama by Owen Davis, with John Mason as railroad magnate with a penitentiary past. As like real life as the novels of Harold Bell Wright, but more thrilling than actual life, even under approximate circumstances.

CHESTNUT STREET OPERA HOUSE—"Cabrera," moving-picture drama by Gabrielle D'Annunzio, of the third century B. C. A truly marvelous feat on the reel, with a convincing volcanic eruption.

FORREST—"Ziegfeld Follies," a potpourri of songs, jokes and spectacular effects; entertaining without consuming brain-phosphorus.

GARRICK—"Adele," French operetta, with captivating music. Reversals in love, with a husband falling in love with his wife.

KEITHS—Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle in their original dances.

WALNUT—"Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," by Kate Douglas Wiggin. Return of this popular, unpretentious but appealing play, do wrong, they can frankly admit it without harsh censure or chastisement. When parents do this all that seem the greater evils and difficulties will solve themselves. Society is no greater than its weakest member, and the colossal malfeasances of financiers are no more egregious than the criminal inconsiderateness and unkindness of the parents that start children wrong by making them selfish, fearful and untruthful.

"Husbands and wives generally lack full sympathy and understanding. And in nine out of ten cases the husband is not absolutely honest and frank with his wife. This results in antagonism, suspicion, lack of respect and unhappiness. Then these very couples, when they become parents, bring up their children in such a way as to make it inevitable that they enter similar conditions. Truth, and absolute truth, should be observed in human relations, and married people should religiously realize their responsibility to the lives they bring into the world, and the veneration and love due those lives. Let parents first apply the command of honor and respect on their part. This would do more good than civic campaigns, woman suffrage propaganda and anti-trust legislation. The reform of incompetent, unloving, irresponsible, misunderstanding parents would mean the reform of the race."

FLASHES FROM "STARS"

Miss Georgia Caine, playing with "Adele," at the Garrick Theatre, owns one of the finest kennels on Long Island. In this kennel is a spaniel named Sherlock Holmes. "Sherlock Holmes," said Miss Caine, "is the champion burglar router of the world. Why, he can detect a burglar a mile off, and is no better against them that he cannot bear to see a burglar even in moving pictures. Recently, before 'Adele' started on a tour, I took Holmes to a moving-picture show in Elmhurst, where I reside. During the action of one of the plays a robber appeared upon the scene. Well, I wish you could have heard Sherlock—he set up a howling that startled the house, and not until an officer appeared in the picture and threw the thief into a cell did my dear Sherlock cease his barking. Clever dog, eh?"

Eva Davenport, bounding and buxom, spent the past summer at Mount Clemens, where she observed a painfully restricted diet, taking all the baths on the program, sat packed in ice an hour each day after a steam bath, and went through various forms of exercise guaranteed to reduce weight.

"I was feeling highly elated and thinking my old friends would notice my loss," she said the other day, "until I came back to the vicinity of Broadway and 42d street. The very first day of my appearance my conceit was given a crushing blow by the policeman who helped me across the street block of the Times Building. 'Why, how-d'you-do, Miss Davenport,' he said 'I am glad to see you.' And I'm glad to see you," I returned, for I have a special fondness for policemen—they have helped me over many a rough place. 'I notice that you have gotten thin,' said I. 'Yes,' he answered, 'but I see you haven't.' And they talk about the gallantry of men!"

Alice Gale, who has scored a pronounced success in "Today," which will be seen at the Adelphi Theatre, does not believe in being pessimistic about anything, and is very optimistic as to the prospects for general prosperity in this country, despite the European war. "If we let the European war discourage us, what would we do if the world should come to an end?" she asked pointedly. "Let us be cheerful. Nothing is so bad it might not be worse."

What is the condition in the average home? A child is restricted by rigid rules. It is trained to see only the parents' point of view. The father and mother never consider the child's point of view. The child, in playing, accidentally breaks a vase, or has some mishap. It is then scolded or blamed. The result is that the child, instead of admitting trivial misdoings, begins to lie. It blames whatever accidents happen on the servant, the dog or the cat. That child continues to lie through life. Into the plastic nature of the immature being the element of fear has been implanted, and with fear, deceit and cowardice. All the later kindnesses of life will not eliminate that poison in the character.

"A child should never be punished. I would never scold a child. 'Now if you don't stop that I'll spank you,' how often do we hear this? A child should never be threatened. A child should never be visited with outbursts of temper. Scolded and whipped, as the average child is, it cannot but develop a bullying and untruthful nature.

"Reforms are not made spontaneously or miraculously—either in political affairs or human lives. We are all what we have grown to be, and our children will be what we train them to be. The great reform to be accomplished in modern life is that of unthinking, unempathetic, ignorant parents. Parents must learn to be considerate of their children, to respect their children, to be able to put themselves in their children's place and see as their children see. They must love and tolerate, and not frighten and intimidate. They should make children feel that, even if they

ADELPHI—Beginning Tonight
HELEN WARE "THE REVOLT"

Katherine La Salle and Nan Campbell—"Drugged"—Broad.

HONOR YOUR CHILDREN SAYS HELEN WARE

Evils of Modern Life, Deceit and Dishonesty, Due to Parents' Tyrannous Training of Children.

"Honor your father and your mother—this has been the injunction that parents have too often and too long held as a threat over their offspring. Honor your children—such a reversal of the Fourth Commandment observed by parents would do more good in the world, in my opinion, than a tyrannizing assertion of parental authority. It is well for children to honor their parents—when they deserve such honor. But parents should first seek to merit this by their treatment of their children. We may talk about the evils of modern life, of deceit and dishonesty in business, politics and the domestic relations; but these evils can't be eradicated until the source is removed, and the source is in the home. Men are what their parents have made them. Cowardice, treachery and dishonesty in life invariably develop from seed sown in the child life."

Miss Helen Ware, who has distinguished herself by her characterizations in dramas of modern life, was sitting in the reception room of her suite in the Vendig last evening. Miss Ware had been discussing the problems of modern life as affording material for drama, and the conversation turned from marriage to the relation of parent and child. Miss Ware, whose personality is as magnetic as it is emphatic, is trenchantly direct in her opinions. Life, to Miss Ware, is a serious thing.

"In life," she declared, "the absolutely greatest things are truth and justice. All our evils, all our problems, exist in the lack of truth and justice. To get down to fundamentals, this applies to business, politics, the relations of men and women, the inequalities, oppressions and wrongs of our social and economic life. And to get to the cause of untruth, injustice, dishonesty, lying and deceit we must go right to the home where the child is reared. 'Spare the rod and spoil the child' is the very command which has spoiled character and spoiled life. If we want to correct abuse we must correct the cause, and we must, therefore, correct parents."

"Fear is the fundamental evil, the original sin, in human life. Now children are taught to fear their parents, and later to fear their teachers. Fear makes cowards. Punishment is the cause of misdoing and crime. If, instead of threatening children, parents encouraged them always to tell the truth without fear of punishment there would be less wrongdoing in the world today. If parents honored their children there would be more honor among men."

"What is the condition in the average home? A child is restricted by rigid rules. It is trained to see only the parents' point of view. The father and mother never consider the child's point of view. The child, in playing, accidentally breaks a vase, or has some mishap. It is then scolded or blamed. The result is that the child, instead of admitting trivial misdoings, begins to lie.
